

ADHD – A Critical Appraisal
of Etiology, Diagnosis and Therapy
International Conference
Regensburg, Germany
June 13–15, 2019

The University of Regensburg and the International Movement & Nutrition Society will host the International Conference on Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder
– A Critical Appraisal of Its Etiology, Diagnosis and Therapy –

We are pleased to invite you to join us for this conference, scheduled for June 13–15, 2019 in Regensburg, Germany. It will provide you with ample opportunity to share and exchange knowledge and experience in a wide range of areas related to ADHD. The special focus of this conference will be the interaction of biological, cultural, social, environmental and lifestyle factors in the etiology, diagnosis and treatment of ADHD.

The conference venue is the University of Regensburg in Bavaria. Regensburg is located on the Danube river with easy access to Munich. The almost 2000-year-old city of Regensburg, with its magnificent Gothic cathedral, is the best-preserved medieval city in Germany. Regensburg, a UNESCO World Heritage site, boasts numerous attractions including its historic interest as a fortress on the border of the Roman Empire, a wealthy trading center during the Middle Ages, and later the seat of the Permanent Imperial Parliament of the Holy Roman Empire.

We look forward to welcoming you to Regensburg in 2019.

Klaus W. Lange, Conference President, University of Regensburg
President of The International Movement and Nutrition Society

Contact: adhd.conf@ur.de

Further information:

<https://www.uni-regensburg.de/psychologie-paedagogik-sport/psychologie-lange/adhd-conference/index.html>

Registration fee: Standard Rate 280 €, Students with ID 180 €

